

Marketing Work Sample

Meta Ads Campaign Brief - Fitness Coach Lead Generation

Prepared by Brian Wilson | Anonymized representative sample | No confidential client data included

Purpose: This sample demonstrates how I would structure, launch, track, and optimize a paid social program for fitness coaches using Meta Ads. It is designed to show strategic thinking, execution detail, measurement discipline, and client/coach communication style.

Business context	Fitness coach seeking more qualified consultation bookings from Instagram/Facebook traffic.
Primary goal	Generate qualified leads and booked calls while keeping CPL and CAC aligned with coach-level profitability.
Core channels	Meta Ads first, with future expansion into Google, TikTok, YouTube, email, and SMS retargeting.
Measurement focus	CPC, CTR, CPL, landing page conversion rate, booked-call rate, CAC, ROAS, lead quality, and follow-up outcomes.

Campaign Strategy

- Build a direct-response funnel around a simple promise: help the coach attract qualified prospects who are ready for coaching support, not just followers or engagement.
- Use coach-specific creative that feels native to the coach's voice: transformation stories, social proof, workout inspiration, coaching philosophy, and educational hooks.
- Segment campaigns by funnel stage: cold prospecting, warm engagement retargeting, website/landing page retargeting, and lead follow-up support.
- Start with controlled budget pacing and scale only after lead quality, booked-call rate, and acquisition economics are validated.

Funnel and Asset Plan

Funnel stage	Audience	Assets created	Success metrics
Awareness	Lookalike, interest, and broad wellness audiences	UGC-style video, transformation proof, problem/solution hooks	CTR, CPC, thumb-stop rate, engagement quality
Consideration	Profile engagers, video viewers, landing page visitors	Coach story, testimonial pin/video, offer explainer, FAQ creative	Landing page conversion rate, CPL, form completion
Conversion	High-intent visitors and opened forms	Consultation CTA, limited-time coaching audit, proof-based retargeting	Booked-call rate, CAC, lead-to-client rate
Nurture	Submitted leads and unbooked prospects	Email/SMS talking points, objection handling, follow-up themes	Show rate, response rate, close rate

Tracking and Attribution Setup

- Implement/validate Meta Pixel and Conversions API events for PageView, Lead, CompleteRegistration, and BookedCall where available.
- Use UTM governance across campaigns so GA4, CRM, and Meta reporting can be reconciled by source, campaign, audience, and creative theme.
- Confirm lead routing from landing page form to CRM/contact system, including source attribution and follow-up status fields.
- Build a weekly performance dashboard showing spend, CPC, CPL, conversion rate, booked calls, CAC estimate, ROAS estimate, and creative winners/losers.

Creative test	Hypothesis	Decision rule
Transformation proof vs. educational hook	Proof may drive trust; education may drive cheaper qualified clicks.	Scale if CPL and booked-call rate beat account benchmark.
Coach-face video vs. static testimonial	Creator-led content may feel more authentic for personal-brand ads.	Keep winner after 7-10 days or statistically meaningful spend.
Direct CTA vs. soft offer	Consultation CTA may convert hotter traffic; soft offer may reduce friction.	Judge by lead quality and lead-to-call conversion, not CPL alone.

Optimization Cadence

- Daily: Check spend pacing, delivery issues, rejected ads, tracking alerts, high-CPC ad sets, and early creative fatigue.
- Weekly: Review CPL, booked-call quality, audience performance, landing page conversion rate, creative results, and recommended budget shifts.
- Monthly: Refresh top creatives, update the playbook, compare coach-level benchmarks, forecast lead volume, and identify scale opportunities.

Sample Performance Dashboard Layout

Note: The values below are placeholders to show dashboard structure. Final numbers would come from the active ad accounts, CRM, and booking data.

Coach/account	Spend	CPL	Booked calls	CAC signal	Action
Coach A	TBD	TBD	TBD	TBD	Scale winning testimonial creative
Coach B	TBD	TBD	TBD	TBD	Refresh cold prospecting hooks
Coach C	TBD	TBD	TBD	TBD	Improve landing page CTA and form flow

Expected Business Impact

- Create a repeatable paid ads playbook that can be applied across many fitness coaches while still respecting each coach’s personal brand and audience.
- Improve visibility into which creative themes, audiences, and offers generate qualified leads and booked calls.
- Help coaches understand paid vs. organic growth in practical business terms: cost, lead quality, booked calls, client acquisition, and payback period.
- Support scalable reporting and decision-making by connecting Meta Ads data with landing page, CRM, and booking outcomes.

Candidate note: This sample is intended for application review only. It shows my approach to paid social strategy, campaign operations, and analytics communication while avoiding confidential or proprietary client data.